Hawaiian Serenaders Hold Forth at Palace

Along with the Terpsichorean Triplets Whom One Can't Tell Apart.

Mr. Alohihea and her "Hawaiian Serenaders" appeared at the Palace yesterday for the first time offering one of the most fascinating musical treats ever heard in this city. Hawaiian music, with its dreamy melodies of the Pacific Islands, has become the rage everywhere. The "Ukulele" one of the most popular of Hawaiian musical instruments, was introduced in the musical numbers and the offering was greeted with great applause. Mr. Alohihea is also featured in a version of the Hula Hula dance of Hawaii. The Pendleton Sisters, aptly termed the "Terpsichorean Triplets," are as lively and graceful a trio as one ever expects to see. They enter into their work with a spirit of enthusiasm that is most infectious. One just can't help wishing to be there with them. There can be no doubt in one's mind after seeing them dance that they are

A different colored ribbon was tied on them, but the little rascals used to change the ribbons to tease their mother. They haven't outgrown their pranks for they do each other stunts on the stage for a lark even now.

"The Black Crook," Kalem's magnificent spectacle motion picture production of the famous stage extravaganza, is the principal attraction at the Bijou today.

"The Black Crook" boasts a record of over 2,000 performances on the stage—a mark unequalled in American theatrical history. For the first time an opportunity is given lovers of the screen to see this famous success of two generations. The motion picture production is announced only after the expenditure of over a year in preparation and many months and thousands of dollars in the actual work of staging the attraction.

Included in the cast are Helen Lindroth, Gladys Coburn, Mae Thompson, Robert Bottomly, Charles DeForest, Frank Leonard, E. P. Sullivan and Henry Hallen.

An episode of "The Iron Claw" called "The Stroke of Twelve" and Hearst Vitaphone News No. 26 including the latest spring styles complete the entertainment today.

The program for Saturday will include Edith Storey, the popular Vita-real triplets. They all look alike, dance alike and you never see them without that rosy, full-of-the-devil smile. When they were very small their mother had hard work to tell them apart, and called them by their right names, May, Louise and Grace.

graph star, and Josephine Earle, of vampire fame, in "The Ewo-Edged Sword" portraying the danger of a woman's jealousy and Frank Daniels in "The Escapades of Mr. Jack," No. 6.

The eleventh chapter of "The Girl and the Game" is being shown today at the Odeon theater as it arrived too late yesterday to be shown, owing to a delay in shipment.

There is a splendid vaudeville show on also for the last two days of this week. Miss Phemie Lockhart has a very good act and does some very clever dancing. Duncan and Holt, blackface comedians, in a singing, talking and dancing act, have one of the best of the kind that has ever ap-

Tomorrow Mary Pickford will be seen in what is said to be the greatest characterization she has as yet given to the screen, called "Rags."

The added attraction Saturday will be the Paramount Bray cartoons and a return of Charlie Chaplin in "Work."

Louise Beaudet is to enter vaudeville in a playlet called "Mother Love," by John E. Hazard and Marguerite Bertsch.

Willard Mack has written a play for Majorie Rambeau called "Down Hill," which will be produced in New York in the fall.

Augustus Pitou, Jr., will again direct the tour of Fiske O'Hara next season, and in addition will have direction of another male star, and will produce a new play.

C. Gardner Sullivan, of the Thomas H. Ince staff of photo playwrights, who surprised those of his profession when he turned from writing dramas to give authorship to "Peggy," the Billie Burke comedy, has again proved his versatility in "The No-Good Guy," the Triangle Kay Bee feature in which William Collier is starred. The two contributions from the pen of the gifted author, are said to be widely different in treatment and still big fun producers.

"I don't know what Kalem pays that fellow Murdock," said a local exhibitor after viewing a Sis Hopkins comedy. "But whatever it is he is worth it for the bangs and knocks he takes alone." Falling gracefully down a six-foot flight of steps is a simple matter to Murdock.

On Saturday, May 20, a rollicking comedy, "A Boarding House Ham," will be released by the Selig Company through General Film Service. The action takes place in a theatrical boarding house. Among the characters presented are the street faker, the animal trainer, the property man, the strong man and the lightning sketch artist. There is a lot of fun in this comedy and the subtitles are carried in clever verse.
